

BRENDA JONES QUICK
CLASS OF 1966

Brenda graduated from Seneca at 17 but it wasn't until 12 years later that she was able to enter the University of Louisville and begin to fulfill her dream of a college education. She excelled as a student and graduated Summa Cum Laude in 1981. This experience just made her want to pursue her next goal, Law School. Graduating in the top 10% of her class, she worked for two years at the imminent Stites & Harbison Law Firm. When her family moved to Ohio she was offered and accepted a clerkship with the Honorable John Evans of the Ohio Third District Court of Appeals.

Teaching law had become a new dream after she had been an adjunct professor at UL and at Ohio Northern. In 1989 she began teaching at Michigan State College of Law and was offered tenure within four years. Two years later she was promoted to Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, where she served until her retirement.

While teaching, Brenda wrote numbers articles and continues to be sought for speaking engagements even today. Since "retiring" she has been a visiting professor in Florida, Arizona and even Changchun, China. And, in addition, she is known for her expertise in Native American Law and has been asked to serve as a tribal judge for the Ottawa and Chippewa Indians.

Brenda has held numerous leadership roles in altruistic ventures, which led to her being honored as one of the ten Most Notable Women in Northwest Michigan.

She now lives with her family in Traverse City, Michigan. We welcome her into the Seneca Hall of Fame.
